SAJM Special Issue
Experience of Universal Business School, Karjat, Maharashtra

"We had the privilege of being involved in the process of publishing a Special Issue on Green Economy for Sustainable Development: Indian Initiatives for the South Asian Journal of Management (SAJM) at Universal Business School.

The journey began with identifying a relevant and timely theme for the Special Issue. This involved extensive research, discussions with experts in the field, and aligning the theme with the journal's objectives and target audience. A total number of 105 papers were received by us and 80 papers were selected after peer review.

All the papers went through plagiarism checks using Turnitin and were compiled in a compendium. Based on the norms prescribed by the conference editorial committee, the best 15 papers were further shortlisted for the Special Issue and submitted to South Asian Journal of Management.

The submitted manuscripts underwent a rigorous peer-review process, ensuring the quality and validity of the research. Dr Asha Bhatia, Director of Research, guest editor for the Special Issue from UBS, worked closely with the team of experts and reviewers who assessed the articles based on their originality, methodology, relevance, and contribution to the field. Effective communication played a vital role throughout the publication process. The SAJM team liaised with authors, addressing their queries, providing guidance on manuscript formatting, and ensuring adherence to the journal's guidelines. Once the selected articles underwent revisions based on reviewers' feedback, it was essential to ensure consistency, clarity, and adherence to journal formatting standards. The SAJM team worked closely with authors to review their manuscripts, maintaining a cohesive style and flow across the Special Issue, Vol. 29 (2022), Issue No.5.

After all revisions and editing were completed, the finalized articles were compiled, formatted, and prepared for publication.The journal's production team collaborated, overseeing the layout, design, and typesetting of the Special Issue. Being involved in the publication process of a Special Issue for the South Asian Journal of Management (SAJM) at Universal Business School it was a rewarding experience. From curating the theme to coordinating with authors, reviewers, and the production team, every step contributed to the successful compilation and dissemination of high-quality research and valuable contribution to the scholarly community.

UBS is thankful to the team of South Asian Journal of Management for encouraging and supporting quality publications contributing to the field of management studies".
